POLITICAL ADVERTISING

PREACHES SERMON ON THE CAMPAIGN

Rev. Mr. McFadyen at Osceola Speaks on the Personality of Mayor Dahlman.

The Mayor is Present and an Interesting Listener to the Ovation.

Grand Island, Neb., Oct. 31.—Mayor Dahlman attended church at Osceola yesterday in company with Dr. and Mrs. Bell. They attended the First Presbyterian church, the Rev. Mr. McFadyen officiating. The presence of Mayor Dahlman created a flutter among those present. With reference to the present political situation, the Rev. Mr. McFadyen said Sunday:

"In the campaign which is now being waged in Nebraska there are various utterances which should cause the Christians of this state to stop and think whether they are doing the Lord's work or not. If we should meet with the approval of the higher power we should endeavor to do what is right because right is right. While we defend our rights, we should defend them within keeping of right principles. We should not even for a moment stoop beneath the dignity of noble manhood and womanhood and allow our passions to get the better of our reason. Let us, ourselves, should be guilty of sowing the seeds of strife in the world in defending our rights, let us remember that the making of peace between human mortals should be uppermost in our minds. For the greatest being who trod this earth said, 'Blessed are the peace makers, for they shall be called the children of God.'

"In the case of Mayor Dahlman of Omaha, let every fair-minded man appeal to his own conscience and ask himself whether the campaign is being waged upon principle, or upon the past character of Dahlman, as it is presented to the people by his opponents. Every public citizen knows full well that some of his opponents have not given a true presentation of his case and character. Some felt meaning citizens have accepted these statements at face value, but to those who know well and best, he has been grossly maligned. We hate to think that men will so far forget their responsibility to God as to belie a poor fellow mortal, struggling hard to live an honest life. We all hate a lie, but which is the worst kind of lie, a lie deliberately told or a lie and truth cunningly mixed together, told deliberately. Indeed, we may well tremble when we think that men will care to use against their fellows a combination of lies and truth. The most potent agency that Satan ever forged to hold in bondage the sons of men and to advance his kingdom on earth is that awful combination, lies and truth. Tennyson beautifully says: 'A lie which is part of the truth is ever the blackest of lies; for a lie which is all a lie may be fought in the outright, but a lie with part truth is the harder matter to fight.' These may perhaps be no credit due the man who will not condescend to place a lie on the wheels of truth, but when a human mortal must stoop so low as to mix truth and lies together to support a cause we can have nothing but contempt for such a person.

"Omaha's chief executive is a plain, every day man. He has his faults in common with us, but like an honest man, he acknowledges them. He does not ask to have the issue decided upon his past character, but decided from the very start that he would be honest in all his convictions, as he has ever been, and that whatever he promised to do, he would fulfill. He insists that the principles that are at stake be exposed to the public view, and that the public by their ballots decide the fight for governorship. That is justice. That is fair play.

"History teaches that the church, wherever it engaged in the building of a worldly kingdom, has failed utterly and miserably, but wherever its sole motive was the upbuilding of a spiritual kingdom, it has succeeded. The ministers of this state, some of them, should recognize this fact and devote their time, their talents and their opportunities teaching the people what the word of God is, concerning them. Their motive should be to bring the word of God before the people and not the will of man, for the word of God is the greatest law. Why then, in the face of the undisputable fact that history records these facts, why then are ministers of Nebraska not content with teaching the word of God, and leaving each man decide for himself? A matter that involves the future welfare of our great state."

DALMAN VS. ALDRICH

Kearney Democrat:

As time moves forward, developments develop and election day approaches, we are growing stronger in the belief that James C. Dahlman is a better man in every respect than Chester H. Aldrich. We never had very much faith in Aldrich, although there have been eleventh hour conversions and a few belated reformations worked out in an honest desire to get out of the rut, but as a rule these sudden changes of life in men who seek political preferment are for no other purpose than to mislead the people and gain a political purpose. Such is what we believe Aldrich has been doing. We do not believe his life has been any more circumspect or wrapped in purity than has the life of Dahlman, and then, Dahlman has this bright mark to his credit—has never played the game of hypocrisy to gain any man or woman's confidence. Dahlman has never been guilty of inducing a woman to gain any object in his life, as has been charged against Aldrich in the Campbell divorce case. But rather Dahlman has stood up like a man, with a gun in his hand, if necessary, to defend a woman against the brutality of a brutish man. Whom would you think the most likely citizen, the better manhood, the better friend to humanity, morals and decency if it were your mother, your wife, your sister or your daughter that happened to be the woman in the case. Wouldn't you admire the man who would unhesitatingly spring to his feet and resent an insult to your wife, daughter, mother or sister? Or would you believe the man a scoundrel who would inveigle any one of them into an act of disgrace for the purpose of gaining a fee, or if not a fee, then just for the fun of the thing? Is that your measure of greatness, of purity, of decency, or morality? If Dahlman was just as bad as Aldrich in all other respects, his one act toward woman compared with that of Aldrich would make him so much better than Aldrich that no one should hesitate to defend and support Dahlman. As time has developed conditions in this campaign, issues have practically been abandoned in the attempt to slander, vilify and defame candidates, especially Dahlman, and the foul birds are rapidly coming home to roost.

THE GOVERNORSHIP

Holt County Independent:

Our readers will understand how intensely we favored the nomination of Governor Shallenburger. We did so because we believed him to be the best governor the state has ever had. We do not retract a single word that we said in his behalf. It is a great loss to the state to lose his splendid services. But the question now is whether Nebraska shall elect as its governor James C. Dahlman or Chester H. Aldrich? Some people who know nothing of the facts have been grossly misled in this campaign. We prefer to see campaign fought out on principle, but a portion of the republican newspapers have been so unscrupulous that we deem it time to tell a few truths about Aldrich. It is time the mask was torn away and his hypocrisy exposed to view. We shall say more next week. His record is so rotten to be expressed in one or in forty issues and get all of it.

In this campaign they are charging that Dahlman at times has drunk whisky. It is true. But so has Aldrich. They charge that Dahlman has on occasions been drunk. So has Aldrich, and much more frequently than Dahlman. They charge that in his younger days Dahlman played poker. So he did and so did Aldrich. Dahlman has no bad habit that Aldrich does not have in a more aggravating form. Aldrich denies them, Dahlman admits them and does not try to mislead anyone.

Aldrich is now claiming to be a friend of county option, but he represented the liquor interests when he was in the legislature. He voted against a county option bill. If you are in doubt on this, look up the record of his vote in the Senate Journal. He not only voted against the county option bill, he led the fight on it. He now thinks there is a chance to make some votes by supporting county option.

His home, David City, is now a dry town, but he did not help to make it dry; he voted to keep it wet. Do you know why? Well in the first place, he was then standing in with the liquor interests, and besides that, he owned a saloon building which brought him a princely rent. It brought him a bigger rent than he could get from any other tenant. He was such a good plunger for the liquor interests that they naturally gave him a big rent on his building. It was his interest to keep David City a wet town and he voted to keep it so. But when the town went dry there was no chance for him to fatten off the liquor people and he thought that county option would be popular and maybe he could get into the governor's chair on a prohibition wave.

In his speech at South Omaha a few nights ago, he declared that he wanted to have saloons in South Omaha just as long as they wanted them; that he had no thought of interfering with their saloons, and, in a general way, jolled up the crowd. He knew that South Omaha was a wet town and he was right back in the old combination where he used to be until he thought he saw a chance to become governor by advocating prohibition.

Jim Dahlman stands for the same thing everywhere in the state. Aldrich talks dry with the dry crowd and wet with the wet crowd. He is cold and cold. He is all things to all men. Which of these two men would you rather trust?
